

Dear Mr. Jones,

Our Philadelphia Orchestra season is about to begin and we cannot wait to see our audiences return to Verizon Hall to be with us! We know you have been a valued Chamber Music subscriber in the past and we thank you for your dedication. Thank you also for your ongoing support of The Philadelphia Orchestra, and for your patience.

We want to tell you about an evolution taking place with our chamber music offerings. We are working with potential new partners to reshape chamber music performances for future seasons. We will not offer a Philadelphia Orchestra Chamber Music Series in Perelman Theater this season. Because of the importance of this music to our audiences and to our dedicated musicians, we plan to present chamber music Postlude Concerts following select Sunday afternoon Orchestra performances in Verizon Hall.

While the Orchestra itself will not be directly presenting chamber music performances at the Kimmel Center's Perelman Theater, we have made special arrangements with our exceptional colleagues at the Philadelphia Chamber Music Society for you to enjoy a unique subscription series of six chamber concerts at the Perelman. These concerts are presented by the Philadelphia Chamber Music Society and will feature several of the principal musicians of The Philadelphia Orchestra and special guest artists in performance—many of whom are familiar favorites on stage with the Orchestra. Enclosed you will find a flier describing the Philadelphia Chamber Music Society offerings and contact information. We really hope you take advantage of this exclusive offer while tickets are available.

Again, we are deeply grateful for your continued support and patronage of The Philadelphia Orchestra, and we will be sure to contact you with additional Philadelphia Orchestra musician chamber music programming as our planning progresses.

Most sincerely,

Janice Hay
Vice President of Marketing
